

A precis of Robyn Elliott's sermon "An Inconvenient Jesus" could never do justice to the richness of her exposition of Mathew 27: 15-23. The story of Jesus being turned over to Pilate is a familiar one. We've heard it read many times at Lent. The problem with it being so familiar is that we don't scratch below its surface to see its relevance to our own lives today. But brought to life by Reverend Elliott, it exposes deep lessons for us today. Read it, meditate on it, and ask yourself how the "inconvenient Jesus" fits in your life and world view.
